

2009 Golf Tournament and 2010 Directors Election

CAIFPA's second annual Golf Tournament was one for the ages. Memories were built, bonds were strengthened, and probably hundreds of golf balls were lost forever. For about five hours on a drizzling, cloudy, and at times, sunny day, golfers dodged miniaturized, flying white canon balls with the flexibility of seasoned gymnast. October 14, 2009 indeed proved to be a fun filled day of competitive golfing at the Pacific Palms Resort Golf Course. Twenty-two golfers humbly showcased their golfing talents and their big driver swing despite spotty rain and drizzling. Although much of the golf tournament involved dodging flying golf balls, all participants were in great spirits as they each competed to get the elusive hole-in-one and take home the top prize – a brand new Mazda Miata. The top team that day was Paul Nieh, Simon Saeheng, Bryant Mok, and Harold Hunt who brought home incredible prizes. Most of their golf balls managed to actually get into the holes with less swings and physics and more luck than anything.

The fun filled golf tournament concluded with an evening with good eating and fellowship at the annual Election Night. That night, four new directors were added to the prestigious board: Alice Lo, Rosalind Wong, Shelley Liu, and Susan Jen. A total of fifteen directors were chosen to serve for the 2010 term. Excitement was high and the spirit was positive. More memories were built, more friendships were created, and more promises to improve golf play were made. Playing golf as a way to relax, exercise, and fellowship is becoming a norm at CAIFPA. Invited guests and members expressed tremendous anticipation for next year's tournament and should prove to be even bigger. We hope to see you there.
